Background: Burns are one of the world's health problems that cause around 180,000 deaths every year. Most cases of burns occur in low- and middle-income countries, two-thirds of which occur in Southeast Asian countries. Burns can cause high morbidity or mortality, psychological disorders and impaired quality of life experienced by sufferers. Burns often require long-term treatment. Along with the increasing socio-economic development of the world, many studies have been carried out to reduce morbidity and mortality due to burns. Method : Information about the importance of burn wound care through the media, one of which is a booklet. Booklet media is one of the health promotion media that aims to convey information to the public with burns in printed form. Results: The booklet title, "BURN Wound Healing with Aloe Vera" was made using a design application with a size of 3.5 x 8.5 inches consisting of 10-15 pages. Conclusion: Booklet is one of the media used to convey health messages in the form of a book but not as thick as a book.
