

Riska Alandani NIM C2015085 Nursing Science Program	Consultans: 1. Mursudarinah, SKM, M.Kes 2. Erika Dewi Noorratri, S.Kep,Ns., M.Kep
RELATIONSHIP WITH ADHERENCE TO TAKING MEDICINES IN HIV/AIDS PATIENTS IN SURAKARTA LENTERA
ABSTRACT Background: AIDS is a disease caused by an infection with a virus called Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV). Appropriate parenting can effect Antiretroviral (ARV) therapy of children infected HIV/AIDS. The most important factor in the success of ARV therapy is the adherence of HIV/AIDS to taking medication. Objective: To know the relationship of foster pattern with adherence to taking medication in HIV/AIDS patients in Surakarta lantern. Method: Quantitative research using a cross sectional approach. Sampling using purposive sampling techniques, with the number of research samples of 27 respondents, instruments using questionnaires. Data is used method of Univariat, sufficient and chi-square. Result: The results showed as much as 14 people (51.9%) Respondents received a good foster pattern from his caregivers and 16 people (59.3%) The respondent has a obedient level of obedience. Conclusion: Parenting for patients with HIV/AIDS is good, the level of compliance with medication in HIV/AIDS patients is compliant, so there is a relationship between parenting and medication compliance in patients with HIV/AIDS in Surakarta Lentera.
Key words: foster pattern and ARV-drinking compliance, HIV/AIDS patients	