

Qurotul Aeni Nisa
NIM C2013 097
Nursing Science Program

Concellor:
1. Wahyuni, D. Kes
2. Norman Wijaya Gati S. Kep., Ns., M. Kep., J

The DESCRIPTION Of The ANXIETY LEVEL Of PATIENTS With DIABETIKUM ULCER Of DIABETES MELLITUS At The TIME
PERFORMED WOUND CARE MOISTURE BALANCE In RSUR Dr.
MOEWARDI

ABSTRACT

Background : Diabetes mellitus is the high levels of sugar in the blood can lead to complications one is wound that can lead to complications such as infection, impaired immunity and the existence of foot wounds that are easily trampled. The existence of these cuts will lead to the anxiety of the patients with diabetic ulcer sufferers. Purpose : Mknowing depiction of anxiety level of patients with diabetikum ulcer of diabetes mellitus at the time performed wound care moisture balance. Method : this type of research deskriptif. Sampling using the technique of sampling, a total of 20 patients. Instrument research using questionnaires sheet HOUSEHOLD. Univariate analysis (%). Results : The Majority Of respondents between the ages of 50-60 years of age, female sex, HIGH SCHOOL educated, and had a job as a self-employed. The majority of the levels of anxiety in patients with diabetikum ulcer at the time performed wound care moisture balance in the PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL Dr. Moewardi with mild anxiety level categories. Conclusion : the majority of anxiety level in patients with diabetikum ulcer at the time performed wound care moisture balance in the PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL Dr. Moewardi with mild anxiety level categories.

Keywords: anxiety, ulcer diabetikum, moisture balance.