

ABSTRACT

Ika Putri Setyaningsih NIM C2015046 Nursing Science Program	Advisors Anjar Nurrohmah, S.kep,Ns, M.Kep Norman Wijaya Gati , M.Kep.,Sp.Kep.J
DESCRIPTION OF ANXIETY LEVELS IN PATIENT'S FAMILY IN ICU KARANGANYAR HOSPITAL
ABSTRACT
Background: The family is a very important support system in the process of healing patients in the ICU. Families who wait for patients in the ICU have a higher level of anxiety compared to patients treated in the ward, because patients who are treated in the ICU have very little life expectancy or recovery which results in a high level of family anxiety Purpose: To determine the level of anxiety of patients in the ICU Karanganyar Hospital Methods: Descriptive survey research, total sampling technique sampling, population of 43 families, sample of 43 respondents, SAI (State Anxiety Inventory) questionnaire research instrument. Univariate data analysis. Results: The results showed the majority of respondents aged 31-40 years were 22 respondents (51.2%), female gender were 27 (62.8%), Islamic religion were 43 (100%), junior high school education was 14 (36.6%), duration of patient &gt; 4 days as many as 30 (69.8%), the status of sufferers father / mother as many as 22 (51.2%), funding sources BPJS as many as 43 (100%) and the level of anxiety is as much as 18 (41.9%) Conclusion: The majority of respondents' anxiety levels experienced very anxious anxiety as many as 18 respondents. Keywords: anxiety, family, ICU	