

ABSTRACT

Ika Nur Rohmatin NIM C2015045 Undergraduate Nursing Courses	Supervising Professors 1. Anjar Nurrohmah, S.Kep.Ns, M.Kep 2. Ida Nur Imamah, M.Kep
RELATIONSHIP COUNSELLING WITH PREGNANT MOTHERS TRIMESTER III COMPLIANCE IN CONSUMING TABLETS OF FE IN SANGKRAH SUBDISTRICT HEALTH CENTERS MARKET KLIWON, SURAKARTA
ABSTRACT
Introduction:. Counselling in pregnant women will affect the knowledge, attitudes and behaviours of pregnant women against consuming tablets compliance Fe in anemia prevention efforts. Compliance drink tablet iron (Fe) is a form of behavior that manifest as a result of knowledge gained from the outside, as well as the confidence and encouragement from others, such as health workers, family, neighbors, or friends. For implementers and managers program, does the success of the program is the increased scope of program granting tablet iron (Fe) and a decrease in the prevalence of anemia on a target that is served. The goal: to find out whether there is a relationship between compliance with counselling of pregnant women consuming it in tablet III trimester Fe. Methods: this study used a cross sectional design point approach time approach, using purposive sampling technique of sampling, sample of 56 respondents, the questionnaire sheet research instrument. Results: the results of the analysis of the majority of the mothers get counseling bivariat and majority of pregnant wayward in consuming tablets Fe. The results of the analysis of the test with bivariat Chi-Square value shows the Pvalue (0.000) < 0.05. Conclusion: there is a relationship between compliance with counselling of pregnant women consuming it in tablet III trimester Fe in Sangkrah Subdistrict health centers Market Kliwon, Surakarta.
Keywords: Pregnant Mom, Counselling, Compliance, Fe Tablets	